

About Us

The National Association of African-Americans in Human Resources (NAAAHR) was incorporated in September of 1998 in the State of Maryland sponsored by the Baltimore Black Human Resources Network and the Washington DC Black Human Resources Network. NAAAHR, a not for profit organization provides a national forum where Black and African American HR practitioners and those aligned with its goals can share, gain information and provide leadership on issues affecting individual careers and global workforce.

With ten years of service NAAAHR has established itself as one of the premier organizations for African Americans in the HR profession and it endeavors to continuously and consistently expand its membership.

NAAAHR-South Florida Chapter values the many talents and abilities of its MEMBERS FIRST and seeks to foster an open, cooperative and dynamic environment where professional development, personal growth and leadership potential can thrive. NAAAHR-South Florida Chapter offers quarterly events at locations across South Florida. This includes partnership with local and national organizations for events and career fairs to increase the presence and leadership ability in minority talent at all levels, across all industries, both nationally and globally.
